

PROMISE and PERFORMANCE

To The Voters of Nebraska:

The Republican legislature of 1907 redeemed every pledge made by the Republican state convention of 1906 and subscribed to by the members of the legislature before election. Following is a fac-simile of a copy of the printed pledges which was clipped from a Nebraska newspaper and pasted on the wall in the office of Governor Sheldon at the beginning of the legislature. As each redeemed pledge, in the form of a bill, was passed by the legislature and delivered to the Governor, he drew a line through the pledge. The figures at the end of the line show the exact time the Chief Executive affixed his signature to the bill and the promise of the Republican party became a performance.

The action of the Republican legislature marks an epoch in the history of Nebraska. It was the first time any political party in the State ever redeemed every pledge made to the people. It is the best guaranty of what the Republican party will do in the future.

WM. HAYWARD, Chairman, Republican State Committee.

THE OMAHA DAILY NEWS, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 27, 1907.

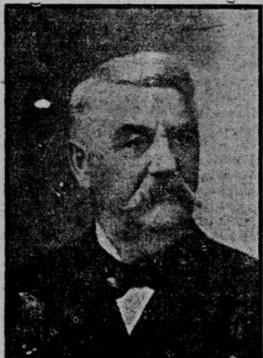

The Promise—Now for Performance

TO THE REPUBLICANS OF NEBRASKA:—

The platform adopted by the Republican State Convention held at Lincoln, August 22, makes the following distinct promises of state legislation in the interest of the people:

1. Laws to compel the railroads to pay their taxes at the same time and in the same manner as a private individual. — 8 P.M. - Feb. 11-07.
2. A direct primary law for the nomination of all state, county and district officers including congressmen and United States Senators. — 11 P.M. - Feb. 11-07.

4. Laws fully empowering the new State Railway Commission to prohibit rebates, discriminations and special rates to corporations, persons or localities, and to see to it that any and all abuses are corrected and equitable freight and passenger rates obtained for the people. — 11 P.M. - March 30-07.
5. In event of failure of the constitutional amendment or its being declared invalid laws giving the people of the State the same advantages congress has already given the nation under the railroad rate bill in matters of interstate commerce. — 11 P.M. - March 30-07.
6. A law along the same lines as adopted by congress punishing the liability of employers to their employees permitting recovery for injuries notwithstanding the negligence of a fellow servant. — 9 P.M. - March 11-07.
7. Legislative appropriations to meet current expenses of state government only under the most rigid economy. — 11 P.M. - April 18-07.
8. A law providing that railroad property in cities and villages shall be assessed and taxed the same as other property for city and village purposes. — 11 P.M. - March 25-07.
9. A law providing inspection and uniform tests of dairy products. — 8 P.M. - April 5-07.

As the republican nominees for our respective legislative districts, we hereby pledge ourselves, if elected, to support and vote for measures that will carry out each of these promises.

M. B. REESE

Candidate for Supreme Judge

Hon. M. B. Reese was born in Macoupin county, Illinois, in 1839, a farmer boy, and while he was living on the farm completed the course prescribed by the country schools, and then worked his way through a seminary near his home. He was admitted to practice and removed to Osceola, Ia. He lived in Iowa from 1865 to 1871, when he removed to Plattsmouth. Practically the entire life of Judge Reese in Nebraska has been spent under the limelight. He was a member of the constitutional convention in 1875; district attorney of the Fourth judicial district for three terms; supreme judge, and dean of the law department of the state university.

The republican candidate is a magnificent specimen of physical manhood, about six feet tall and broad in proportion. He is a good specimen of the man who is strong enough to blaze a trail in a new country or lead an old country out of a rut. And he is even tempered, good natured, a wit and an orator. In 1887 he served as grand master of the Masons, and he has always taken great interest in the lodge.

Speaking of Judge Reese, Governor Geo. L. Sheldon said: "Judge Reese has a spotless record, both public and private. He is a student, a scholar and a tireless worker. I have been his admirer for years. He has always stood for the best interests of the people regardless of the consequences to himself. He has been opposed to machine rule in politics and has fought for years that the government and the people might be brought closer and closer together. He should receive the entire republican vote and doubtless will receive many of the votes of the opposition parties because he stands for the very best in state government. He is one of Nebraska's best men and will make a splendid record on the bench."

HENRY T. CLARKE, JR.

Candidate for Railway Commissioner

Henry T. Clarke, Jr., is at present one of the Nebraska Railway Commissioners, serving as the appointee of Governor Sheldon, and is a candidate as the nominee of the republican primary for the same position.

Mr. Clarke is one of the few native sons of Nebraska who has ever held a state office. He was born at Bellevue, Nebraska, Aug. 4, 1875, and comes of an honorable Nebraska family. His father, H. T. Clarke, came to Nebraska in 1855, and served as a member of the territorial council of 13 when a very young man.

Commissioner Clarke offers to the people of Nebraska the very best qualifications and training for the position of railway commissioner. Graduating from the Omaha High School as valedictorian of the class of 1892, he attended Williams college two years, graduating from the latter institution in 1896. In 1897 Mr. Clarke pursued post-graduate work in political science, specializing on the subject of railway transportation and political economy. A year later he entered the Michigan Law School, graduating in 1899.

In January, 1900, Mr. Clarke began the practice of law at Omaha. He was married in 1901, and has two children. In 1904 he was elected to the legislature by the largest majority ever given a legislative candidate in Douglas county, his majority running close to the 5,000 mark.

While ever an industrious, progressive, and hard-working member, the author of much good law, he came most prominently into the limelight during the last session when he courageously stood in the front rank upholding the hands of Governor Sheldon, and casting his vote, and his influence for the reform measures of the republican party.

CHARLES B. ANDERSON

Candidate for University Regent

Mr. Anderson was born in Albion, N. Y., June 30, 1865. He graduated from the high school in 1883 and engaged in the hardware business. In 1887 he located in DeWitt, Saline county, Nebraska, and for ten years conducted a banking business in that village. In 1897 he removed to Crete, and in company with T. H. Miller, organized the State Bank, of which he is vice-president. In 1899 he organized the Crete Conservative Investment Company, of which he is president. In 1896 he was a delegate to the republican convention and cheerfully cast his vote for William McKinley. In 1902 Mr. Anderson was elected state senator from Saline county, receiving almost 800 majority. He was a member of the Revenue Committee, was chairman of the Finance, Ways and Means Committee and was associated on that and other standing committees with Gov. Sheldon, then a senator from Cass.

Mr. Anderson was among the very first to mention the name of Geo. L. Sheldon, for Governor. In the last republican state convention he was the chairman of the committee on resolutions and instrumental in drafting the platform which was ratified by the voters last November, and put into effect by the legislature.

He is president of the Crete school board and of the trustees of Doane College. He was also president of the State Layman Association of the Congregational churches of Nebraska, and is a member of the Executive Council of the State Bankers' Association. Mr. Anderson is the father of five robust children, believes in "brotherhood of man," and is an active member of the A. F. & A. M., the K. P., A. O. U. W., and Modern Woodman fraternal orders.

GEORGE COUPLAND

Candidate for University Regent

Coming of a long line of old English yeoman stock Mr. Coupland was born upon a farm in Lincolnshire, England, May 2, 1857. He received a liberal education. Twenty-seven years ago he came to Nebraska and homesteaded the quarter section in Antelope county upon which he now lives. Mr. Coupland is and always has been an ardent advocate of higher education, more especially in agriculture. He has kept himself in close touch with that branch of work in the Nebraska State University almost since its inception. And the agricultural college has been patronized by his sons.

For the position of regent Mr. Coupland is supported by many of the strongest institutions and men in the state.

The Nebraska Farmer urges the candidacy of Mr. Coupland because we believe that he is a man for the farmers. And we believe further that he is a man of enough intellectual strength and ability, possessing those elements of integrity and honor to a degree that makes him a man of rare fitting for such a responsible position. And all this without one word regarding his political views or party affiliations.—The Nebraska Farmer (a non-partisan paper) Aug. 7, 1907.

From the foregoing sketch it can be seen how highly Mr. Coupland is esteemed and honored. He is a practical farmer whose earnest advocacy of the modern idea of applying advanced educational and scientific methods to agriculture should command for him the solid farmer vote. He has ever been a loyal and consistent republican, and is in hearty accord with the progressive ideas in our state today. The election of Mr. Coupland and Mr. Anderson will be gratifying to all friends of our great University.

The republican party in Nebraska presents a remarkable record of achievement under the able leadership of Senators Burkett and Brown, our governor and state officers, the five republican congressmen, the members of the legislature and loyal republicans throughout the state.

An examination of the platform in brief in this column is proof positive of the absolute good faith kept with the people.

The voters of Nebraska who believe in progress should go to the polls and triumphantly elect Judge Reese and the state ticket lest a backward step be taken.

In Reese, Clarke, Anderson and Coupland the people will find the same stripe of loyal, progressive men as those who represent them in national and state councils at the present time.

THE BOY AND THE HORNETS.

A band of gay hornets
Built a nest
High up in a tree,
High up in a tree,
They said to themselves,
"By dwelling so high
We've got safety,
We've got safety."

But a boy passing by,
With a long fishing rod,
Looked up in the tree,
Looked up in the tree.

And seeing the nest,
A-hanging so high,
Said: "Ah, hully gee!
Ah, hully gee!"

"I'll give you a tap
With my long fishing rod,
Just for fun,
Just for fun."

Then after I've busted
You to smithereens
I'll just break and run,
I'll just break and run."

And the boy did the job
That he said he would do:
But alas and alack!
He was a strange sight
When at last he reached home,
He'd been stung by the pack!
He'd been stung by the pack!

AN INTERESTING TRICK.

It is Performed With a Piece of String and a Ring.

One of the most interesting string mysteries is the marvelous "ring trick." Having tied the ends of your string together, pass it double through a finger-ring, and ask some one to hold the ends upon their two forefingers. You may now proceed to remove the ring without cutting the string or releasing the fingers, which seem to hold it securely.

First pass the string a second time around one of the fingers which hold it, then drawing the loop thus formed toward the opposite hand as shown in the figure, pass it over the string on the other finger until it lies in the position of dotted line; then with your two forefingers catch up at a and a one of the strings holding the ring and sliding your fingers from each other, quickly slip from the ends of your companion's fingers the part of the string holding the ring, which, being thus released, will fall into the hand, with which you can quickly cover it before it leaves the string to add to the mystery.

The surprise of your stringholder will now be doubled, says Philadelphia Ledger, if you proceed to return the ring to the string without removing the ends from his fingers. Pass the string, as in the first trick, around one of his fingers, and drawing the loop, as before, toward the other hand, slip it through the ring as shown at d; then pass the loop over the finger, this time leaving it near the end, as c; with your two forefingers catch up the string which was first upon the fingers, and slip it from them over the part holding the ring, and you will find the ring in place, as at the beginning of the first trick.

A Passing Thought.

A polite little girl was dining one day with her grandmother. Everything at the table was usually dainty and unexceptionable, but on this particular occasion the little girl found a hair in her fish.

"Grandmama," she said, sweetly, "what kind of fish is this?"
"Halibut, my dear."
"Oh," replied the child, "I thought perhaps it was mermaid."

A Doubtful Compliment.

A cyclist in France jvortok a peasant with a donkey cart. The patient beast was making but little progress, so the benevolent cyclist, putting his left hand against the back of the cart and guiding his machine with the other hand, pushed so hard that the donkey, taking fresh courage, pulled the load successfully up to the top. When the summit was reached the peasant burst into thanks to his benefactor. "It was good of you, indeed, monsieur," he protested. "I should never in the world have got up the hill with only one donkey."

Dangerous.

Passing through a certain part of the country one day a stranger read this sign:

"Danger! If any man or woman lets his or her cow stray into this here cornfield, his or her tail shall be cut off, as the case may be.

TOTO, THE WICKED PRINCE.

How He Was Finally Cured of His Naughty Ways.

Prince Toto was probably the naughtiest little prince there ever was. He kicked and scratched and bit most every one who came near, and became a terror to his nurse and others who waited upon him.

Of course, he was given nearly everything he wished. When he couldn't have what he desired, he became unusually vicious and disagreeable. During bad weather he was at his very worst. Then he would go up to the roof of the castle, where he was always stationed a royal astronomer, and command that official to have good weather sent immediately. When the dignified gentleman would explain that that was impossible the naughty prince would pull the astronomer's beard or throw away his cap.

Things came to such a pass, however, that complaints began to reach the king himself. The king was very much shocked at these reports of the prince's misbehavior.

He at once issued a proclamation offering a great reward to any one who would rid his son of such evil traits.

For a time no one appeared, but at last there came to the king an uncouth giant, with great long nails, tusks for teeth and long, pointed ears.

"I am a genie sent by the good fairy who watches over your kingdom," he explained, in answer to the look of wonderment upon the king's face. "Have no fear; I shall take good care of your son and return him to you completely cured."

So the king finally permitted the giant to take the prince with him. The prince wasn't the least bit willing to go, but whether he would or no, he was forced to seat himself upon the back of a great goose, the giant bestrode another, and in a second's time they were flying swiftly through the air. Toto hung on for dear life, fearful every moment that he would take a bad tumble.

"Don't feel so much like kicking and biting and scratching now, eh?" asked the genie.

After a while they landed near a great lake. Strange to say, across this lake there stretched a very narrow plank.

Toto was made to walk across the lake, the genie walking on the water beside him and pricking him with his sharp nails when he didn't move fast enough. To poor Toto that bridge seemed like a mere thread, and the distance he had to go more than 100 miles.

When his feat was accomplished the giant announced:

"Now we shall pay the old magician a visit. He'll cut off your head and put another one on."

Prince Toto pleaded and cried and promised, but all in vain.

When they reached the cave of the magician, the old man came out in response to the genie's call.

"Yes, indeed," said he, "I have lots of boys' heads left; and this little boy is so naughty that he surely needs another one. I only give the very, very bad boys new heads, you know."

Down on his knees Toto begged to be allowed to keep his own head, promising that never more would he be naughty.

At last the magician listened to his entreaties and let him go.

The genie led Toto back to his father's castle. As they approached it he whispered into the prince's ear:

"Now, remember, if you should become bad again I shall call for you and take you to have your head cut off."

But Toto kept all his promises, and every one wondered at the delightful change which had taken place in the prince who was once so wicked.

A Boy's Discovery.

While a boy near Charlevoix, Mich., was chopping wood for his mother, a few days ago, he came upon a hollow in the log and an oyster can in the hollow. In the can he found 300 silver dollars, and he went about shivering with gladness for about an hour or so. Then the money was taken down to the bank and found to be counterfeit.

The bogus dollars and the can had been placed in the hollow of the tree long years before, and as the tree grew they were sealed up as tight as a drum. The boy is now looking for an oyster can with good money in it.

Something Saved.

Jennie's mistress, awaiting tea, heard a loud crash in the next room, says a writer in Black and White. The mistress shivered and rang the bell to call Jennie in.

"What is that?" she asked.

"I tripped on the carpet and the tea things fell, ma'am."

"Did you manage to save anything?"

"Yes, ma'am. I kept hold on the tray all right."

To Tell Your Fortune.

The following questions, if carefully observed, will tell the fortune of your friends, young or old. Be sure to try this:

First write the year of birth. Add age. Add 4. Multiply by 1,000. Subtract 696423. Substitute the letters of the alphabet for the numbers and read your fortune.

Just the Tail Moved.

Elizabeth was asked to go into the next room to see if the clock there was going. Shortly she returned with this information:

"Clock is standin' still, but the tail is waggin'!"

JUDGE REESE

"Judge Reese has a spotless record, both public and private. He is a student, a scholar and a tireless worker. He has always stood for the best interests of the people regardless of the consequences of himself. He has been opposed to machine rule in politics and has fought for years that the government and the people might be brought closer and closer together. He will make a splendid record on the bench."

HENRY T. CLARKE, JR.

Henry T. Clarke, Jr., candidate for railway commissioner, comes before the people as the friend, and appointee of Governor Sheldon, and as a leader of the 1907 legislature whose vote and influence were enthusiastically for the reform measures of the republican party.

C. B. ANDERSON

"The State University requires nearly one-sixth of the entire revenue raised for public purposes, and Mr. Anderson, as one member of the board, could safely be entrusted to expend this large amount in an honest and economical manner, safeguarding both the interests of the people and the welfare of the State University."—Nebraska Signal, Geneva.

GEO. L. COUPLAND

"All the different departments of the University are of vast importance and if elected it will be my desire to do all possible for their development, but I want to tell you and I say it emphatically that the Agricultural Department will be my especial thought."—Hon. Geo. L. Coupland, before State Convention accepting nomination for Regent of State University.
